Nehru Not Waking Promises

Washington, Oct. 14-American officials said today that they had received no implied commitments from the Indian Prime Minister, Mr Jawaindicating harlal Nehru. that he intended bringing India to the side of the West in the "cold war" against Russia.

They said Mr Nehru has exhibited extreme caution in talks with President Truman, the Secretary of State, Mr Dean Acheson, and other officials in order to avoid giving any impression that he intends to abandon India's position as a neutral "third force" aligning fixelf with neither he Russian nor Anglo-American blocs. The only point on which American officials have been reassured is that Mr Nehru does not intend to rush into reis becoming increasingly obvious that devaluation was by no means the end of Britain's financial troubles. On every side qualified speakers are pointing out the tremendous effort which will have to be made by British industries if more and cheaper goods are to be sold in dollar markets. This is a problem which affects everyone, management and workers. The chief factor governing extra effort by workers is certain to be the ratio of wages to the cost of living, and this is a problem which must be causing trade union leaders much worry. Bluntly, the question with which they are faced is whether they are prepared to accept a temporary reduction of the standard of living of the worker in the interests of national economic survival. Devaluation has already brought in its train a reduction in how much the worker's wage can buy. Brend, for instance, the staple item of the housewife's budget, is now dearer. And trade union leaders, are understandably apprehensive that the cost of living will rise still more during the next few months. Wage-carners are the first to suffer from inflation and a rise in the cost of living, but this does not lessen the gravity of the country'a economic problems. Most trade unionleaders have gradually come round to this realisation, and have for some time been trying to impress upon the rank and file the inadvisability of new wage claims, Their attitude has, of course, been conditioned by the assumption that the Government would keep prices stendy, perliaps even bring them down. This is the crux of their predicament. If devaluation is to be a success, wages must not be allowed to keep pace with the rise in living costs. This is a painful, but nonetheless logical fact. If it is ignored, the country's economic position might casily deteriorate further, and prejudice even more the standard of living of the average worker. Some programme must be devised to recognise the real difficulties of the workers, and their needs, and balance them against the policy of wage stabilisation. The institution of a national minimum wage is looked upon with distrust by the unions, because of the deep-rooted fear that the minimum might be adopted in industries which could afford to pay higher rates. One way to prevent hardship would be to increase the wages of only the poorest paid workers, but this, by reducing the differences in reward, would tend to remove the incentive to acquire more skill and work toward promotion. Neither of these solutions really attacks the roots of the problem. Single men, or childless couples, even in the lower wage groups, are less exposed to hardship than the married man with a family. An increase in family allowances scems a sound way to ease the burden. The question, boils down to this: no general wage increase is possible without a serious threat to the national economy; but to maintain morale in industry something cozerete must be done to prevent hardship and to provide opportunities for all workers to carn more by harder work and higher productivity. Incentives, are an important aspect of the problem., A return to "the weakest to the war!" competition would obviously not be in keeping with the aspirations of the Labour Government, but there can be no harm in an intensive campaign to convince workers that increased productivity benefits all concerned-and to see that It does benefit them by increasing their reward. An immediate and energetic effort in this direction seems a sound ... way of ensuring that Britain produces the goods she must sell to regain her economic stability.

Incentives And Wages

"The spinach tasted worst, Chef. Of course, it's a watery vegetable in itself. so should be cooked in its own juice. I'm convinced that the reason spinneh is generally overcooked is because it is customary to cook the stems and leaves together. In order to get the stems tender, the leaves have to be overcooked, and so lose not only their fine flavour, but their pleasant texture and attractive green colour."

Clever Diagnosis

"Madame, that is a clever diagnosis. To avoid this difficulty we shall have to introduce a new method of cooking spinneh, which I shall now sugrest. First it should be quickly washed three times in tepid water to get rid of the sand and dirt. Then we must put a big handful of the leaves neatly together and cut off the stems in inch lengths. These chould not be thrown away; they are very good to eat. We will put them in a saucepan with no more than one-half inch of water. We will add a little salt, put on a lid and slow boil "We've 10 minutes, and no longer. learned to like that. It's such Then we put in the leaves and a costly business to fill these mix it all up. "One reason more people do not eat spinach is because it is often incking in eye appeal," observed the Chef. "But with a little care it can be made an attractive part of a fine meat or fish platter. Par example, the spinach timbales. These are not difficult. Just rub custard cups with butter or margarine. Drain off the liquid, chop the cooked spinach fine, season and pack it into the cups. Let stand in the oven until very hot, Then unmould on a platter around the meat or fish; put a thin slice of lemon or radish on each timbale. Et voila!"

FULL PROGRAMME LEAGUE GAMES THIS WEEK-END

By "STARDUST"

The 1949-50 Softball Season opened last Sunday when only one Senior League game was played in which the American Consul-General, Mr Karl L. Rankin, pitched the first ball. The game was between the HK. Pandas and the US Navy (represented by USS Gardiners' Bay) and resulted in a win for the latter by 6 runs to 4.

This afternoon and tomorrow will see the start of a full programme of League matches in the Senior and Junior Men's Divisions and also the Ladies'. Today and tomorrow are the days that thousands of softball fans have been waiting for.

This season promises to be a most interesting one. In the post-war years Portuguese teams have been successful in annexing the trophies. This year, with so many Chinese players available, they will have to fight hard to retain these

Changing The Cloth

Because Fred Davis is to meet his brother Joe in a distinetly "needle" snooker match on March 20-in the world snooker championship - he has made a request that Joe shall not be allowed to play on the Lelcester Hall table for a fortnight beforehand. The point being, of course, that the materi will be played at that hals, which is Joe's home ground.

The management have promised this much; that for this game they will provide a new cloth, and that as nobody will play on this beforehand the table will be neutral.

Incidentally, Peter Mans, of South Africa has travelled 6000 and George Chenier, of Canada, 3000 miles for this championship. Now they meet in the first round at Scunthorpe, Lines. Kitchee v. Army The Week's Big Game

League Football enters its third week of the season today. Kitchee are the only team who have collected maximum points to date. The other teams, especially Army, started off in grand form but have been dropping valuable points which make a bigger gap between themselves and the all-conquering Kitchee in the League

The only teams that appear to be able to challenge Kitchee's supremacy are Army, St Joseph's and Kowloon Motor Bus. YOUNG JAMES GREW UP TO FIND A CONTINENT

WITHEN young James Cook ran off to sea from the village draper's in which he was apprenticed at Blaithes, on the Yorkshire coast, he did not dream that one day he would claim Australia for Britain.

He learned to steer a ship by the stars and compass, and when war came with the French he joined the Navy to fight. -

But it was as a captain navigator that he gained fame, and the Government sent him to search for a vast continent believed to stretch down the Pacific to the Aniarctic Ocean.

. MCKENNEY ON BRIDGE

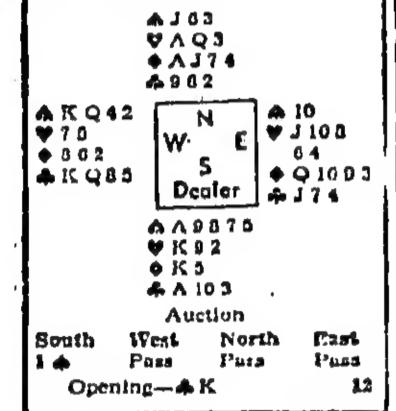

How To Win-Still Lose Auction Hand

BY WILLIAM E, MCRENNEY

T DROVE out to Glen Island Casino the other, night with my friend, Howard Gill. While we were there, I met Joseph Sudy, who was leading the orchestra.

In 1938 he started a band. In 1942 he went into the Navy and in 1945 came out a lieutcommander. While for his discharge papers to come through, he walked into the office of Music Corporation of America one day. Sonny Werblin asked him what he was going to do. Joe had nothing in mind, so Werbin told him, "I have a band for you, Joe. I'll book you into the Biltmore on Monday." From there Joe went on to great success.

Joe likes to play auction bridge. It reminds him of the good old days when people talked in small figures. It is nothing in auction bridge to play a hand at one spade, make three and still be minus. You buy the contract as cheaply as possible and don't try to bid a game.

In today's hand West did not overcall with clubs, because he had only two honours. West opened the king of clubs which South won with the ace. He went over to dummy with a heart and led the jack of spades, West winning with the queen. The queen of clubs was coshed and another club led which East won. He returned a duamond. Now all South lost was two spades and two clubs, thus making three-odd.

In auction, spades count nine points a trick. That's 27 points for North and South. However, East and West held simple honours, which counts 30, so declarer was minus three points on the hand.

DORN today, you are just one of those who appears to be continually helpful to mankind. You are always full of good advice which is based on sound judgment and com-mon sense. You are, at heart, something of a reformer and it makes you happy to tell others what should be done. Those, however, who do not follow your advice, are never given a second dose of it! You are not one to waste your efforts, needlessly.

You have a good business head and should be able to make money if you enter business. However, you must find some kind of work which interests you. Not "just anything" will appeal to your imagination. You have the gift of the written word and probably would do well in some field which calls for the use of this talent. DORN today, you have a generous, altruistic D nature and always are doing good for others, even if it is at a personal sacrifice.
You are very fond of children and have a knack of knowing how to handle them diplomatically. You would make an excellent teacher or youth leader. You are too likely to be imposed upon and you must guard against others using your good offices for their own selfish ends.

You have definite literary talent and are fond of art, music and good books. You are apt to underrate your own personal talent and must not do this, for you will never reach the heights if you "talk down" your own ability.
